Arctic Monkeys are still in the studio, in a bid to finish writing their fourth album. The band are currently recording the new record in their studio in the Welsh mountains. The Sheffield band - who are currently playing their final tour dates in America - revealed earlier this year that they will be finishing the new album at the end of the year. Alex Turner said in an interview with NME: "We have plans to finish this album at the end of the year. We want to do the best thing we can and we just have to keep moving forward. "As soon as you get to a certain point you start to realise it's like 'oh, I want to do that again, and I like that again, and that would be cool too'." The band have teased the new album by posting pictures on their Instagram page, which have included a live shot from last November's O2 Arena gig. The photo also shows the band's lead guitarist, Andy Nicholson, posing for the camera. In a separate photo, the band are seen playing with guitars on a roof terrace. Arctic Monkeys frontman Alex Turner said: "Our next record is done. We've been writing it and recording it over the past month and a half. "It's done. That's the main thing." Alex added that the band have been in the studio for "a long time" and will be finished in the next three weeks. He added: "This will be the first time we've had a break. We're not allowed to talk about it, but we're going to be able to come back from

“Neo.Arc is a great play-style RPG from L’Age D’Eau. And if you like RPGs, you will enjoy it. My eyes have been opened with this game, it is a bit like Demon’s Souls that makes you go crazy, and then almost sounds like it’s going to be the same. Either way, players will have a good time.” - The Game Knife “This is an exquisite game. If you’ve liked any of the Soulsborne games, you will be thoroughly satisfied in this game.” - Gamernut “In the game, you will encounter a new type of narrative, where instead of following a single character and there are many characters, you will be dealing with the “singular impression of the all” - The Game Knife “I got a special edition (of the game) for the 20th Anniversary as a gift from the Neo.Arc team. I played it for a while and finished it. After I finished it, I realized that it was a game that I could not stop thinking about... and ended up with a very interesting conclusion. And not only “the game” has a comprehensive scope. The core of the game is well written. I can say that it is one of the best RPGs in recent memory.” - The Gamers Den
